

Being a Mental Health First Aider

Your guide to the role

MHFA England

Welcome

Congratulations on completing your Mental Health First Aid Two Day course and becoming a certified Mental Health First Aider.

You are now part of a community of over 500,000 people in England and 3 million people worldwide trained to recognise mental ill health and help people find the support they need to stay well.

Together, we strive to achieve our vision of creating a society where attitudes and behaviour to mental ill health are normalised, where everyone has the skills to look after their own and others' wellbeing.

This document is for Mental Health First Aiders and outlines what to expect from this role, what support you will need from your employer if you are a Mental Health First Aider for your workplace and, how MHFA England can support you.

Thank you for becoming part of our community.

Simon Blake OBE,
Chief Executive

Using the five-step MHFA action plan, you now have the skills to:

Approach the person, assess and assist with any crisis

Listen and communicate non-judgementally

Give support and information

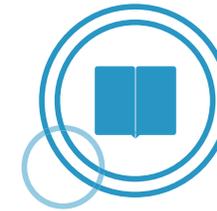

Encourage the person to get appropriate professional help

Encourage other supports

Mental Health First Aiders

Now that you have taken the Two Day course you are a Mental Health First Aider.

You can:

- Understand the important factors affecting mental ill health
- Identify the signs and symptoms for a range of mental health conditions
- Use ALGEE to provide Mental Health First Aid to someone experiencing a mental health issue or crisis
- Listen non-judgementally and hold supportive conversations using the Mental Health First Aid action plan
- Signpost people to professional help, recognising that your role as a Mental Health First Aider does not replace the need for ongoing support

It's important to remember that MHFA England courses do not teach people to be therapists or counsellors and do not teach people how to diagnose mental health conditions or provide ongoing support. Instead, your role is to act as a point of contact and reassurance for a person who may be experiencing a mental health issue or emotional distress. Maintaining appropriate boundaries is a key part of successfully providing Mental Health First Aid and keeping yourself safe and well.

“Sarah, one of our Mental Health First Aiders, noticed I wasn't how I usually was. I was really struggling and I didn't know who else to go to. To sit there and let me speak about how I feel and what's happened, it made me feel reassured that I wasn't just an employee, but she took my personal and mental health into consideration.

Together we discussed the next best steps to take: we phoned the GP together and Sarah personally took me to my appointment that very same day. She came in with me so they could discuss what would be the best thing for me at work, as well as what steps my doctor wanted to take.

I ended up taking three weeks off work and then began a phased return with the help of Sarah. I also had private counselling through the company's employee benefits scheme, and cognitive behavioural therapy through my GP.”

Your responsibilities

Mental Health First Aiders can have a profound and positive impact on their communities. Carrying out your role responsibly involves the following:

- ✓ Keeping yourself safe and well – for more information refer to your MHFA England course manual
- ✓ Communicating any concerns about the mental health and wellbeing of anyone in your workplace, for example to an appropriate manager
- ✓ Following your workplace's policies and procedures on how MHFA England training is implemented in your organisation
- ✓ Upholding your role as a Mental Health First Aider alongside your other responsibilities
- ✓ Establishing appropriate boundaries between yourself and colleagues you may be supporting
- ✓ Refreshing your skills every year, and re-doing your training every three years

“The MHFA training also made me realise that I need to look after my own mental health more and keep an eye on how I’m feeling, as well as supporting others.”

Mick, Mental Health First Aider,
Royal Mail

Engaging with your employer

Being a Mental Health First Aider makes you an important part of an organisation's health and wellbeing strategy, but promoting positive mental health is not just down to you. To perform your role effectively and safely at work, MHFA England training should be one part of a whole organisation approach. You need the full support of your employer, which should include an effective strategy, policies and procedures, and clear communication of your role and how you will be supported.

✓ Discuss policies

Discuss with your employer what organisational policies and procedures you should follow and refer to in your role as a Mental Health First Aider.

If you are advising a manager, or if you're a manager yourself, consult the MHFA England Line Managers' Resource for external guidance on dealing with mental health in the workplace.

✓ Find out about referral pathways

Find out from your employer what the referral pathways are for mental health support and how best to signpost a colleague, either internally or externally. Your workplace may have its own support available for employees, such as an Occupational Health or Employee Assistance Programme.

Your MHFA England course manual also contains details of reputable national charities and services that can be approached for support. If in doubt on where to signpost someone or how to deal with a crisis, refer to the guidance in your manual.

✓ Ask how your role will be communicated

Ask your employer how they will let colleagues know you are a Mental Health First Aider and how to contact you. Organisations use a variety of ways to let staff know how they can talk to a Mental Health First Aider, and what kinds of thing a Mental Health First Aider can support them with. Some examples include putting up posters around the workplace, putting a list on an intranet hub, or giving out first aider lanyards or badges.

✓ Your role within the whole organisation

Training up Mental Health First Aiders is only one part of an effective approach to fostering a mentally healthy organisation so it's a good idea to find out how your role fits in. Ask your employer what steps they are taking to adopt a whole organisation approach to mental health and wellbeing.

Engaging with your employer

You may be working as part of a team alongside colleagues who have completed an MHFA England One Day or Half Day course to become MHFA Champions or Mental Health Aware. Find out if your organisation has trained staff in these roles and how you might work together as a team.

Each role is different but plays a part in supporting a mentally healthy organisation:

People who have taken the MHFA England One Day course are MHFA Champions.

MHFA
Champions

They can:

- Understand why mental health is as important as physical health
- Help build a mentally healthy workplace and understand how Mental Health First Aid fits into the workplace
- Recognise the main symptoms of mental health conditions
- Listen non-judgementally
- Use ALGEE to provide Mental Health First Aid for the most common mental health conditions
- Guide a person towards appropriate professional support
- Consider becoming a Mental Health First Aider

People who have taken the MHFA England Half Day course are Mental Health Aware.

Mental Health
Aware

They can:

- Understand why mental health is as important as physical health
- Support a mentally healthy workplace
- Recognise some signs of mental health distress
- Start a supportive conversation about mental ill health and listen non-judgementally
- Guide a person towards appropriate professional support
- Go on to become a Mental Health Champion or First Aider

Support for you

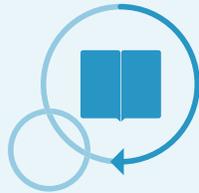

Being a Mental Health First Aider is a rewarding role but it can also be a challenging one. It's important that you communicate with your employer to understand what support is available to you. It would be useful for you to find out:

- Who you should contact if you need support or are concerned about any aspect of your role
- Whether there is a peer support system such as a Mental Health First Aider network where you can meet regularly with others to discuss your role and share ideas
- Whether you will have the opportunity to renew your skills on an MHFA Refresher course after three years

"It's as though the safe space created during the MHFA training has come back with us into the office. We now feel able to be more open with each other about our mental health and to support each other when we are stressed."

Pamela, Mental Health First Aider,
Together Housing Association

How MHFA England supports you

Refresher

Mental Health First Aiders are encouraged to take an MHFA Refresher course every year. Speak with your employer about attending a Refresher course and how regularly they would like you to refresh your skills.

If it has been more than three years since your course, we recommend that you re-do your training.

This half day course will enable you to:

- Keep your awareness of mental health supports current
- Update your knowledge of mental health and what influences it
- Practice applying the Mental Health First Aid Action Plan
